IN RE RASMUS ADOLPH APINES. The petitioner prayed to be adjudicated bankrupt. The liabilities amount to $16.636.38, the assets nil.

Mr. Webber appeared for the petitioner. Mr. Webber said proceedings to make the petitioner a bankrupt had been taken in consequence of judgment having been obtained against his client, in the Summary Court, for $1,000 and a writ of execution having been issued. Petitioner was a clerk in the employ of the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company, Limited, and was in receipt of a monthly salary. He was obliged to take the present proceedings to prevent being imprisoned. Most of the debts had been incurred in consequence of unfortunate share speculations.

The impression that the new Act gives is that health of a serious nature.

it is a complete and compact measure, and that it will be far from easy for those who are disposed to evade its provisions to find any gap in the fence. The penalties laid down for infringement of the Act are sufficiently severe. A conviction on indictment carries with it imprisonment with or without hard labour, for a term not excueding two years, or to tine, or to both imprisonment and line. A summary conviction fixes a maximum of four months' imprisonment as above, and a fine of twenty pounds, these, on second or subsequent conviction, liable to by raised to six months or fifty pounds respectively. The various definitions of the terms used in the Act seem to be so comprehensive as to afford but a poor chance of finding any flaw that would permit of the defeat of the purpose of the Act in any material point. From the very extensive use of fraudulent trade marks upon goods exported to Eastern markets it seems to us that in the interests of British manufacturers at home and British marchants here, some Colonial legislation in this direction is imperatively called for. We would invite the Chambers of Commerce of this Colony to use their influence to bring about the adoption of such an adaptation of the new Merchandise Marks Bill as would, in their opinion, be appropriate to the commercial requirements of these settlements. A successful trade mark is an invaluable property. It represents a trade reputation that often requires a great expenditure of time and capit il to build up, but which may be fatelly asted in a comparatively short time by the introduction into the same market of worthless goods stamped with a fraudulent imitation of it. There is therefore the most powerful of all rea-

The following summary of an order of the day by General Munier gives a graphic account of a recent skirmish in Tonquin, which resulted in the capture of one of the principal insurgent leaders, named Nghe-on :-- On the 25th of May an emissary of Nyhe-on, chief of the reb ilion in the province of Ngho-on, was made prisoner. In return for his life he promised to guide Sub-Lieutenant Bulleux to the retreat of his master. The officer at once set out with a small detachment of the Tonquin Tirailleurs. For six hours they marched through a pathless forest, or up a torrent with the water breast-high. An advanced post of nine men was surprised, and they were either killed or bound without being able to give an alarm. They then arrived in sight of Nghe-ou's village, but the guide hesitated. Corporal Phuong-ngac-con, seeing that delay would be fatal, caught hold of a child, gave him his gun, which he said he had taken from the French, and asked him to lead him to the presence of the great Mandarin. Once brought into his presence the corporal threw aside disguise, and springing on the chief seized him by the throat, while the rest of the detachment, harrying up, dispersed Nghe-on's badyguard. Sub-Lieutenant Bulleux returned in triumph with his prisoner to his post at Yenma.'

If one looks into the question of relative English and American beauty, (writes the London correspondent of a Boston, U.S., paper), it is plain that the manifest superiority of American women is due partly to their knowing -ah! how well they know !-how to make the best of them-One thing is painfully common even among the best-kept English women, and that is an unsightly gap in the teeth where one has been removed -it may be a front tooth itself. They never seem to think it necessary to have it replaced, and it gives a positive shock to an American accustomed to the sorupulous care of the teeth practised by their country-women. Another difference is in the grizzled bair of many English lidies, who don't seem to have acquired the subtle spell of the American women of fifty or The production of the Navy Estimates in the thereabouts, whose hair suddenly turns to a She had been with me since the 12th September, investigation had been made he hoped that they House of Commons called forth the usual con- lustrous, dazzling white, making the features the course certificates will be given to students 1886.
